

NORTHWEST HERB FARMS

Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

Compiled by Michael Pilarski. Edition #1. 12/28/2015

Personal knowledge and on-line sleuthing led to this medicinal herb farm list. The term is used somewhat loosely here and some of the following may wish to be identified as gardens rather than farms and some may focus on wildcrafting. I have not tried to include wildcrafters in this list. A few culinary herb farms may be included here inadvertently. I have tried not to include the dozens of culinary herb farms here unless they also grow medicinals. This edition largely does not include Northwest lavender farms. Over the next couple months this list will be expanded and clarified. At some point it can become a directory with contact info, websites, etc. Please send corrections and additions to this list.

Two of the most notable herb farms in western Oregon are Pacific Botanicals and Herb-Pharm. East of the Cascades we have Trout Lake Farm in Trout Lake, Washington, and Oregon's Wild Harvest which recently moved from the Willamette Valley to the Bend, Oregon area. There are dozens of small-scale herb farmers scattered around the region.
