Michael Pilarski’s 2018 Teaching Tour: Kauai and Hawai‘i

Here are the first two events and likely there will be more.

Agroforestry Around the World

April 11, Wednesday. 6:00 pm
Hawaii Farmers Union United, HFUU, 2nd Wednesday of the month meeting.
Location: Anahola Clubhouse, 3900 Kawelo St., Anahola, HI 96754.
Presented by Michael Pilarski, Friends of the Trees Society
Examples and images from six continents. tropical, subtropical, and temperate - wet and dry - different scales - and different cultures. Food production, carbon sequestration, strengthening local economies.

Michael has been studying tropical, subtropical and temperate zone agroforestry since the mid 1970s. His hands-on experience is in the Pacific Northwest, mainland USA. He has taught 5 permaculture design courses in the Hawaiian islands, three of them on Kauai and is the author of Agroforestry Guide to Hawai‘i, 1997.

Foraging & Wildcrafting Around the World

April 12, Thursday, 4:00 pm—6:30pm
Location: Waipa (Mauka) in Hanalei
Waipa Foundation
5-5785 Kuhio Hwy # A, Hanalei, HI 96714
Plant walk, discussion and a presentation by Michael Pilarski, Friends of the Trees Society.
Bring some wild foods and show & tell plants. We will look at wild plants nearby the venue and discuss the foraging and wildcrafting situation on Kauai.

Michael Pilarski is a professional wildcrafter in the Pacific Northwest, mainland USA. He studies the role of wildcrafting in cultures worldwide and teaches wildcrafting with a special emphasis on sustainability, regenerative wildcrafting and ecosystem restoration. He is the author of the Ethnobotany and Ethnoecology Resource Guide, 1999 and Subtropical and Tropical Medicinal Plants Checklist, 2001. We recognize the Kuleana of the Hawaiian community to steward the `Aina and we would like to collaborate and hear their viewpoints.

Contact Michael@friendsofthetrees.net
Cell: 360-643-9178
www.friendsofthetrees.net

Watch for the second Agroforestry workshop in Hawi, Hawaii on April 17. Venue TBA. Both of them sponsored by the Hawaii Farmers Union United.